What to do in a flood

Floods are a growing problem worldwide, and they have caused serious problems in Argentina in recent years. We know that they can be dangerous, too. Even low levels of water can cause accidents and illness: if water rises to 15 cm, and it is moving, a person won't be able to stand in it. And people will become ill if the water is contaminated.

However, there are precautions every person can take. Here's a list of what to do in the event of a flood in your area.

- Watch the weather report. Unless you know what's happening, you won't be prepared.
- Fill bottles with drinking water. If your water supply becomes contaminated, you will have clean water to drink.
- Stay inside. You are safer from injury inside a building.
- Move valuable items to a higher floor, where they are at less risk from damage.
- Be ready to evacuate. Unless you plan a route from the flooding area, you won't be able to leave safely and quickly.

This advice can help everyone. There will be fewer accidents and injuries if we all take care.

- 2 Read the article again. Why is 15 cm of water so dangerous?

Vocabulary Emergency actions

- 3 Match the words to the pictures.

1 stay inside

2 close the windows

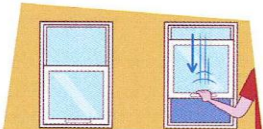

3 take shelter

4 watch the weather report

5 buy supplies

6 evacuate

- 4 61 Listen to the words in Exercise 3. Then listen again and repeat.

Grammar First conditional

1 Read the examples. Then complete the table.

If water rises to 15 cm, you won't be able to stand in it.
People will become ill if the water is contaminated.

If clause	Main clause
If the hurricane comes ,	we ¹ 'll _____ evacuate .
If the hurricane doesn't come ,	we won't ² _____.
If the hurricane comes ,	³ _____ we evacuate ?
Main clause	If clause
We'll evacuate	if the hurricane ⁴ _____.
We ⁵ _____ evacuate	⁶ _____ the hurricane doesn't ⁷ _____.
Will we ⁸ _____	⁹ _____ the hurricane ¹⁰ _____?

Now choose the correct words to complete the rules.

- We use the first conditional to talk about strong possibilities / things that are always true.
- In the if clause, we use the past simple / present simple.
- In the main clause, we use the present simple / will for future.
- We always put a comma after the if clause if it comes first / second in the sentence.

2 Choose the correct words.

- We will take / taking shelter if it rains.
- If you leave / will leave now, you'll be OK.
- Will they are / be in danger if they don't evacuate?
- We not / won't have anything to eat if we don't buy supplies.
- If it rains / will rain, will he stay inside?

3 A tornado is approaching Caleb's school. How does everyone get prepared? Complete the description with the first conditional forms of the verbs below. There is one extra verb.

be be close get leave tell

At the moment, our teachers at school are watching the weather report. If there's news of a tornado, we ¹ 'll get _____ prepared. If there ² _____ a tornado this afternoon, we'll take shelter in a safe part of the school. If any doors or windows are open, the teachers ³ _____ them. If they ⁴ _____ us to sit or lie down, we'll do what they say. We ⁵ _____ OK if we all stay inside.

unless

4 Read the examples. Then study the rule.

Unless you know what's happening, you won't be prepared.

Unless you plan a route, you won't be able to leave safely.

- Unless* means If ... not.

Unless you leave now, you'll be late. =

If you don't leave now, you'll be late.

The picnic will be great unless it rains. =

The picnic will be great if it doesn't rain.

5 Rewrite the sentences. Use unless.

- If it doesn't rain soon, there'll be a forest fire.
Unless it rains soon, there'll be a forest fire.
- If there isn't another earthquake, the buildings will be safe.

- They'll need raincoats if they don't take umbrellas.

- If we don't watch the weather report, we won't know what's happening.

6 Write your own warnings for the situations below. Use the first conditional with if or unless.

- If you don't get under the table,
something will fall on you
- Unless it starts raining soon,

- If lightning strikes the town,

- Unless the public buys supplies,
